INSTRUCTIONS: Retailers must attach the new supplemental promo insert (shown below) to all GE Money consumer credit promo terms and sales slips to be compliant.

Important Information

This document supplements your application and promotional disclosures. Together, these documents will provide you with both your standard account terms and promotional terms that you may receive for your purchase.

The retailer will provide you with a promotional disclosure that will describe specific details of promo terms that are available. The promotional disclosure document will provide you with the term (duration) of the individual promotion offered by the retailer and accepted by you.

In addition, unless otherwise noted in the promotional disclosures, a Purchase Annual Percentage Rate up to 29.99% will be applied to the promotional balance from the purchase date. For first transactions on your account, refer to the Initial Disclosure Summary Box on your application for the actual Purchase Annual Percentage Rate. The Purchase Annual Percentage Rate will continue to apply after your promotional term expires. If payment on your account is received after the due date, then this rate may change to the disclosed Delinquency Rate.

If you have questions related to the standard or promotional terms available for your purchase, please ask your retailer for details.
